Millions Prepare To Go To Polls In Wildest Election In Many Years.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
PHILADELPHIA, May. 19—A long distance telescope, set up in Washington and manned by the same suspicious senators who six months ago barred William S. Vare because he spent too much money, was trained on Pennsylvania today as millions of its voters prepared to go to the polls tomorrow to decide the maddest primary campaign in the state's history.

MANY CANDIDATES

Irrespective of who wins the senatorial nomination, "Uncle Joe" Grundy, the high priest of high tariff; Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, the candidate of the Vare machine; or Francis H. Bohlen, the thoroughly wet law professor at the University of Pennsylvania, there is likely to be a tremendous fuss about it.

Money has flowed in this Pennsylvania campaign as one of yore. All the senatorial candidates, as well as the aspirants for governor, Gifford Pinchot, Francis Shunk Brown, and ex-congressman Thomas W. Phillips, are wealthy men. And the political dictatorship of wealthy Pennsylvania is at stake in tomorrow's test.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, (R) of North Dakota, chairman of the senate campaign funds, investigating committee, already has put Pennsylvania on notice.

He made a personal trip of inspection; he has sent a warning telegram to district attorneys; he has suggested the impounding of ballot boxes to prevent fraud; and he has every way to indicated the senate's conduct of the unprecedented keystone primary.

All of which hasn't helped the confidence of the sense of well being on the part of the candidates concerning tomorrow. The gubernatorial candidates, of course are immune from the Senate's censure or authority. With the Senatorial candidates it is another matter. And all of the latter are, directly or indirectly, linked up with the gubernatorial aspirants.

Davis and Brown comprise the anti-prohibition ticket; and Grundy and Pinchot, while not formally allied as the others, have nevertheless been forced into the same political bed through the natural circumstances, and their joint hatred of what they term "the Philadelphia gang" and the activities of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, who is supporting Davis and Brown.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 19.—With 100 persons killed and more than 100 injured by tornadoes which lashed eastern Arkansas and northern Texas, a wide area in the Red River valley region today fought rapidly-rising flood waters which have driven hundreds from their homes.

The tornado struck first yesterday in Ellis-co, Texas killing three persons. From there it skipped to Phillips-co, Ark., where 16 persons, most of them negroes, were killed outright.

An estimated 10-inch rainfall has forced the Red River and several tributary creeks from their banks. The Ouachita River had reached a 25-foot stage early today, according to relief workers. Two towns, Griffin and Lott, are completely under water.

Warnings of the flood danger were sent throughout the flood zone to nearly 2,500 persons, most of whom have sought shelter in buildings on higher ground.

In the region about El Paso, where the tornado did vast damage, 80 persons were injured in the storm and were treated at nearby hospitals and relief stations.

Relief is being rushed by the Red Cross from St. Louis and from El Dorado, Ark.

The storm, that wrecked the business district of Somerville, Tenn., struck yesterday when many villagers were at church. Although surrounding buildings were practically demolished, the church building was practically undamaged.

Commencement For 53 Students To Be On June 3—Banquet on June 2.

Circleville high school's seniors, who will graduate June 3, began the last week of their school lives Monday.

Fifty-three students will graduate from the local school this year as against 50 just a year ago. The banquet, the biggest event of the year, with the exception of the commencement, will be held the night before the commencement exercises. Committees are hard at work arranging for this big time, which promises to be a huge success.

Dr. W. G. Clippinger, president of Otterbein college, will be the commencement speaker.

Principal E. I. Gephart announced Saturday that Emil Ross will be class valedictorian and Gladys Harris will be salutatorian.

Red River and Tributaries Over Banks By 10 Inch Rainfall Sunday.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 19—With 19 persons killed and more than 100 injured by tornadoes which lashed eastern Arkansas and northern Texas, a wide area in the Red River valley region today fought rapidly-rising flood waters which have driven hundreds from their homes.

The tornado struck first yesterday in Ellis-co, Texas killing three persons. From there it skipped to Phillips-co, Ark., where 16 persons, most of them negroes, were killed outright.

Twelve of the fatalities occurred on the Lambrook plantation, the buildings of which were demolished in the storm. At Somerville, Tenn., 15 buildings were crushed and seven persons were injured by the gale.

GUARDSMEN WORK

Arkansas National guardsmen last night and today coursed the inundated Red River region in small boats, removing stranded groups of homeless to safe ground. Militia officers described the flood situation as grave throughout the oil field region.

An estimated 10-inch rainfall has forced the Red River and several tributary creeks from their banks. The Ouachita River had reached a 25-foot stage early today, according to relief workers. Two towns, Griffin and Louann, are completely under water.

Warnings of the flood danger were sent throughout the flood zone to nearly 2,500 persons, most of whom have sought shelter in buildings on higher ground.

In the region about Elaine, Ark., where the tornado did vast damage, 80 persons were injured in the storm and were treated at nearby hospitals and relief stations.

RUSH RED CROSS

Relief is being rushed by the Red Cross from St. Louis and from El Dorado, Ark.

The storm that wrecked the business district of Somerville, Tenn., struck yesterday when many villagers were at church. Although surrounding buildings were practically demolished, the church building was practically undamaged.

CONDITION OF KING IS GOOD

Circus Member Does Not Suffer Fractured Skull—Forget Accident Here.

Mickey King, 21, aerialist of the Robbins Bros. circus, who was thought seriously injured when he fell from the Roman rings here last Thursday, is in a much improved condition and is expected to return to her act within a few weeks. Circus attaches reported that Miss King was suffering a fractured skull but word from Dover, O., where the show is being staged Monday said that such is not the case.

Miss King does not recollect anything about the accident which shocked a large crowd of spectators.

Arthur Gregg, who was severely burned by a premature explosion while preparing for the cannon act, is present in Dover with the circus and in fair condition.

NO ONE INJURED AT STEVENSON'S

Ford Slides on Pavement and Strikes Car of Ellsworth Washburn, Columbus.

No one was injured at 2:15 p. m. Sunday when the Franklin car belonging to Ellsworth Washburn Columbus, Ohio, collided with the Ford driven by a young man named Sailer of Marion, O., at Stevenson's crossing.

Spectators said Sailer lost control of his car on the wet pavement and skidded into the Washburn car.

Both automobiles were slightly damaged. Washburn was enroute to his home and Sailer was enroute to Chillicothe.

MAN VICTIM OF OWN HAND

Floyd Seitz, Aged 44, Prominent Ross-Co Farmer and Land Owner, Dies.

An act which is thought to have been suicide, took the life of Floyd Seitz, aged 44, prominent Ross-co farmer, and landowner, of near Frankfort, at Chillicothe hospital Sunday at 11:45 p. m., less than one hour after he is thought to have shot himself through the head.

He was rushed to Chillicothe hospital in a Metzger and Fisher ambulance, but less than five minutes after he was taken there, he died.

He was standing at the top of the stairs in his home, occupied only by himself and his wife, when he either committed suicide or shot himself accidentally.

He is survived by his widow.

Funeral services, in charge of Metzger and Fisher of Williamsport, will be sometime Wednesday.

BULLET WOUND CAUSES DEATH

COLUMBUS, O., May 19—A self-inflicted bullet wound in the heart Thursday caused the death of Andy Garich, 50, who was an employee of the Marble Cliff Quarries here.

Garich's body was found near the quarries Wednesday afternoon by a fellow worker, Mike Garis. Some people spend so much time seeking happiness that they have little time to enjoy it.

Every man makes mistakes; only the man who fails to profit by his mistakes is a failure. A smile cannot be bought, borrowed or begged or stolen, for it is something that is no earthly good to anyone unless given away.

A debate as to whether excessive beer-drinking or excessive pop-corn eating is more harmful seems to end at a draw. Now some of our arguers might debate the relative evil of lemon cream pie and sauerkraut juice.

Necessary expansion in the children's work and the Research Department of the hospital, have increased the annual expenditures, and it is hoped to make up the operating deficit through the distribution during the "National Jewish Hospital Week" of "NJH" Bonds.

"NJH" Bonds are messengers of health and friendship, said Mr. Joseph. "Their purchase means the opportunity for health and strength to the patients now in the Hospital, and to the hundreds of applicants in all parts of the country waiting for admission."

The bonds are attractive souvenirs of this life-saving work, and sell for a minimum of $1.00 each.

BEE INSPECTION

The first year of operation under a new Ohio law making it permissible for counties to co-operate with the state in inspection of apiaries for foul brood and other untoward conditions, has resulted in appropriations being made by the commissioners of the following nearby counties: Williams, $300; Sandusky, $600; Paulding, $600; Van Wert, $500; Allen, $300; Auglaize, $300; Logan, $100; Darke, $300; Delaware, $300; Licking, $300; Muskingum, $100; Pickaway, $200; Ross, $200; Lorain, $600; Huron, $250; Lake, $200; Portage, $200; Ashtabula, $500; Trumbull, $275.

Bee-keeping is showing great growth in Ohio, declares C. A. Reese, state apiarist. No county is without scores of colonies, and many hives of bees are to be found in the cities. Ohio ranks with the leading honey-producing states of the country.

"PICTORIAL OHIO" A NEW PUBLICATION

There is being prepared by the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society and the State Department of Education, a booklet entitled "Pictorial Ohio" which is intended for limited free distribution.

This publication will contain pictures of outstanding places of scenic, historic and archaeological interest in Ohio, together with brief description of each. The book will contain an up-to-date state road map, with key numbers printed in red, referring to a numerical index in the book which will give in detail the information desired.

In order to properly present the more than six hundred points of outstanding public interest in the state, the book will be issued in three volumes, covering a period of three years, each volume to be made up of 72 pages covering about two hundred points. If a copy of each issue of these annual publications is preserved, a very complete and accurate record of scenic and historic Ohio will be possessed.

THE FOX HUNTER'S ANGLE

Fox hunter members of the Holmes County Conservation League, Millersburg, Ohio are asking the Division of Conservation to send surplus foxes from the game farms to Holmes County to be released in the wild hill lands near Millersburg. The fox hunters point out that their dogs never kill a fox, that their sport is in the thrill of the chase, and the music of the bounds. They hunt mostly at night. Ninety percent of the fox hunters are farmers or outdoorsmen from the smaller towns. They also have a rule against running dogs during harvest time, or the season when mother foxes are giving birth to their young. The fox hunters declare that while foxes may do damage to poultry and game in open agricultural flat lands, they are not destructive in hill lands where there is plenty of cover. They assert that common farm dogs do more damage to game than the fox hunters, hounds which are never known to kill a fox and are never run on other kinds of game.

DIVISION OF MARKETS

The new Division of Markets of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, is cooperating with the shippers of fruits and vegetables in the guarantee of standards of quality and grading in shipments. This cooperation is of great value, says Director of Agriculture Perry L. Green, both to the purchasers of the product and to the shippers, because the well known standard guarantee by the Department and by the shipper assures the purchaser of such product that he is purchasing a well graded variety of fruits or vegetables, and reduces consignment controversies. This work will become more general and effective year by year, and producers should avail themselves of the advantage, says Mr. Green.

$135,000 IN PRIZES

Premiums totaling $135,000 are offered for educational exhibits at the eightieth annual Ohio State Fair, August 25-30.

WHAT, IN OHIO!

A driver of one of the Blue and Gray busses, waxed enthusiastic over the thrills of a trip over Route 125, east of West Union, and to Friendship in Scioto-co. About five miles of that section is through the Roosevelt Game Preserve. "Scarcely a trip through that I do not see some of the game wandering in natural surroundings there," he said. "This morning I saw a deer, a bear, pheasants and other game. It would pay anyone to make the trip over that section. Aside from this, those who enter that wonderful mountainous section may glimpse scenery that in grandeur compares with any in the country. Instead of avoiding the hill section, as most southern Ohio does, it penetrates the area.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative. He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

This week has been set aside as "National Jewish Hospital Week," during which time a campaign of education and publicity on the work of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver will be conducted throughout the country. The local work is under the direction of Henry Joseph. Associated with him are W. G. Hamilton, Geo. F. Grand-Girard, Jos. M. Lynch and E. W. Lutz.

The work of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver has been long and favorably known. According to Henry Joseph, this Hospital was the first institution in America for the free care of sufferers from tuberculosis on a national scale. It was opened in 1889, and during the past thirty years has cared for over 6200 men, women and children. These patients have come from all parts of the country, practically every state in the Union being represented by them.

Although started by Jews and maintained largely by Jewish philanthropy, this Hospital has always been non-sectarian in its service. Today over 20 percent of its patients are non-Jewish. It is a free institution. No patient pays; no patient who can afford to pay is admitted.

All Outdoors and Where To Go

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 19—Light to this: Eleven percent of the building and loan savings banks for travel and sport and pleasure.

Henry S. Rosenthal, Cincinnati sportsman, and chairman of the Committee on Public Relations of the United States Building and Loan League, and publisher of American Building Association News, following a careful coast-to-coast survey on savings accounts and vacation funds, finds that of the 13,000,000 depositors and borrowers on the books of the Building and Loan associations of America, 11 percent, or 1,430,000 represent sportsmen, tourists and vacationists, a majority of whom do some hunting or fishing during the vacation season.

The average expenditure is $10 per day, per person—$14,300,000 per week. Some may go only for a week or 10 days, while others have 30 days for a vacation period. The average vacation period is 15 days. The figures stagger the imagination—the amount spent for outdoor recreation, hunting, fishing, camping, boating, excursions, touring—going places and doing things.

It is estimated that $370,000,000 is spent by American tourists and sportsmen in Canada during the vacation season. Millions are spent in Michigan, Wisconsin, Maine, New York, Minnesota, in summer and in southern states in winter. California claims that out of the 1,430,000 vacationists, including sportsmen and tourists, 175,000 came to California alone to spend their vacation saving accounts.

Rosenthal predicts that vacation savings will increase from year to year as the vacation clubs of Building and Loan Associations make it convenient to lay up money from week to week for the fishing, hunting, or pleasure trip each year. Saving accounts as travel funds, are being encouraged and promoted by Building and Loan organizations. Within the next 60 days, the savings funds will be put into use and invested in pleasure, health, and happiness, by this army of tourists and sportsmen.

IN SEVEN WEEKS KONJOLA SCORES FINE VICTORY!

Cleveland Lady Relates Happy Experience With Modern Medicine—Had Stubborn Stomach Trouble.

MRS. E. L. JOSEPH.

"It is not only a pleasure, but a duty, I think, to make public my happy experience with Konjola," said Mrs. E. L. Joseph, 1309 Hayden avenue, Cleveland. "For several years my digestion was far below normal, and as medicine after medicine failed me I became suddenly worse. For four weeks I lived on practically nothing, for whatever I ate, my stomach rejected it. I became weak and nervous and was greatly worried over my condition.

"A friend urged me to give Konjola a chance, and though I had little faith left in any medicine, I took her advice. How glad I am that I did! The second bottle of Konjola revealed that this was the very medicine I needed. Thereafter improvement in my condition was rapid, and in seven weeks, my stomach was as strong as ever. What a joy it is to be able to eat whatever I like. I am gaining in strength and weight, and know what it is to have health again."

Konjola is not designed for mere temporary relief. Quickly it goes to the source of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. When taken over a period of six to eight weeks the results will amaze those with even the most stubborn ailments.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Thompson believes they will do more good on the nest than they would in the frying pan.

Hatchery men report favorable conditions to date in both lake and streams as well as in hatcheries. Bass are spawning earlier this year than usual. Streams are normal, and quite clear in most parts of the state. In southern Ohio thousands of young bass have already been hatched and placed in rearing ponds by hatchery men. Small mouth bass are hatching from day to day at the Newtown hatchery.

REAL SPORTSMEN

Throughout Ohio, League of Ohio Sportsmen members have laid away their rods and reels and have voluntarily agreed to not wet a line until the spawning season on bass is over, June 16. They are giving other fish a chance, as well as bass, although the law covers only bass in Ohio.

This will mean millions of fish hatched this year—which otherwise might have been lost. The example set by League members has caused other fishermen to stop and think, and to do less fishing while the season of reproduction is on. The League policy came in response to a letter from I. S. Myers, president, Akron, requesting such voluntary action.

GOOD PLACES TO GO

Now if you want whitefish, pickerel, pike, lake trout, brook trout, good guides, good camps, beverage freedom, enchanting scenery, delightful climate and all that, not too far away, and not too expensive, Northfield Lodge, or Whitefish Lake, at Gracefield, Quebec, 70 miles north of Ottawa, Ontario, a day and a half by train, two days by auto, is the place.

Here is the new North near home. It is in the heart of the ancient Laurentides and the lovely Gatineau river country. Mountains, lakes, forests, rivers, brooks—unspoiled. Small-mouth bass are plentiful. Other game-fish abundant. The writer has been there. Gerald Grace, Grace's Limited, Gracefield, Quebec, is the head guide and outfitter. A letter to Grace would bring details. The Canadian Pacific railway reaches Gracefield. Motor roads via Ottawa, and up the Gatineau. Good roads all the way.

USE SOY BEANS INSTEAD OF HAY

Hazard of Drought In Production of Pasture Causes Change To Beans.

The hazards experienced due to the droughts in the production of pasture for hay, would indicate the importance of considering soy beans as an emergency hay crop to fill the gap created by the prospects for a very short crop of good legume hay. Soy beans may be planted now for hay. They should be seeded at the rate of seven pecks to 2 bushels per acre. They are drilled with the grain drill by using the oats feed on the drill. Soy beans should not be covered over from one to one half inches. The beans should be inoculated to obtain best results. Soy beans do not need to be fertilized. By seeding at this time of the year, they may be harvested the last of August for hay and with normal rain fall and growth should yield from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 tons of hay per acre. Soy bean hay properly made, gives practically the same digestible nutrients per ton as may be obtained from good alfalfa. Hay crop prospects would indicate the importance of giving soy beans consideration as an emergency hay crop this year.

All Outdoors and Where To Go

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 19 — Listen to this! Eleven percent of the Building and Loan savings goes for travel and sport and pleasure!

Henry S. Rosenthal, Cincinnati sportsman, and chairman of the Committee on Public Relations of the United States Building and Loan League, and publisher of American Building Association News, following a careful coast-to-coast survey on savings accounts and vacation funds, finds that of the 13,000,000 depositors and borrowers on the books of the Building and Loan associations of America, 11 percent, or 1,430,000 represent sportsmen, tourists and vacationists, a majority of whom do some hunting or fishing during the vacation season.

The average expenditure is $10 per day, per person—$14,300,000 per day. Some may go only for a week or 10 days, while others have 30 days for a vacation period. The average vacation period is 15 days. The figures stagger the imagination—the amount spent for outdoor recreation, hunting, fishing, camping, boating, excursions, touring—going places and doing things.

It is estimated that $370,000,000 is spent by American tourists and sportsmen in Canada during the vacation season. Millions are spent in Michigan, Wisconsin, Maine, New York, Minnesota, in summer and in southern states in winter. California claims that out of the 1,430,000 vacationists, including sportsmen and tourists, 175,000 came to California alone to spend their vacation saving accounts.

Rosenthal predicts that vacation savings will increase from year to year as the vacation clubs of Building and Loan Associations make it convenient to lay up money from week to week for the fishing, hunting, or pleasure trip each year. Saving accounts as travel funds, are being encouraged and promoted by Building and Loan organizations. Within the next 60 days, the savings funds will be put into use and invested in pleasure, health, and happiness, by this army of tourists and sportsmen.

IN SEVEN WEEKS KONJOLA SCORES FINE VICTORY!

Cleveland Lady Relates Happy Experience With Modern Medicine—Had Stubborn Stomach Trouble.

MRS. E. L. JOSEPH.

"It is not only a pleasure, but a duty, I think, to make public my happy experience with Konjola," said Mrs. E. L. Joseph, 1309 Hayden avenue, Cleveland. "For several years my digestion was far below normal, and as medicine after medicine failed me I became suddenly worse. For four weeks I lived on practically nothing, for whatever I ate, my stomach rejected it. I became weak and nervous and was greatly worried over my condition."

"A friend urged me to give Konjola a chance, and though I had little faith left in any medicine, I took her advice. How glad I am that I did! The second bottle of Konjola revealed that this was the very medicine I needed. Thereafter improvement in my condition was rapid, and in seven weeks, my stomach was as strong as ever. What a joy it is to be able to eat whatever I like. I am gaining in strength and weight, and know what it is to have health again."

Konjola is not designed for mere temporary relief. Quickly it goes to the source of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. When taken over a period of six to eight weeks the results will amaze those with even the most stubborn ailments.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Thompson believes they will do more good on the nest than they would in the frying pan.

Hatchery men report favorable conditions to date in both lake and streams as well as in hatcheries. Bass are spawning earlier this year than usual. Streams are normal, and quite clear in most parts of the state. In southern Ohio thousands of young bass have already been hatched and placed in rearing ponds by hatchery men. Small mouth bass are hatching from day to day at the Newtown hatchery.

REAL SPORTSMEN

Throughout Ohio, League of Ohio Sportsmen members have laid away their rods and reels and have voluntarily agreed to not wet a line until the spawning season on bass is over, June 16. They are giving other fish a chance, as well as bass, although the law covers only bass, in Ohio.

This will mean millions of fish hatched this year—which otherwise might have been lost. The example set by League members has caused other fishermen to stop and think, and to do less fishing while the season of reproduction is on. The League policy came in response to a letter from I. S. Myers, president, Akron, requesting such voluntary action.

English Delicacy
Clotted cream is what is known as Devonshire cream in England. It is made by taking rich milk, placing it in a vessel and heating it to 175 degrees Fahrenheit. This will cause the cream to rise to the surface, where it can be skimmed off. In England this is sold in small earthenware jars, and is considered a great delicacy, to be served with fruit or cereal.

BUSINESS INDIVIDUALISM

Apparently industry isn't all going to consolidate, any more than trade is, in spite of the recent trend that way. James Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, declared the other day as far as mergers are concerned, "the bloom is off the rose."

"To merge or not to merge, that is the question," he mused. "Some think unless we merge, we will be submerged. The best thing we can do is to emerge." Meaning, perhaps, to emerge from the notion that a merger is the remedy for all industrial ills, the answer to every economic problem.

"Today every thing runs big," he said. "But let me tell you, we must give some attention to the small manufacturer."

Mr. Farrell is not the only big business man who is inclined to think that big business will find it advisable to do little business live, and even to do some decentralizing itself.

"The next ten years," suggests another observer, "may belong to the business man who grew up in his market, to the manufacturer who serves a special demand well, and to the workman who has been on the job so long that he needs no high-priced overhead to tell him what to do."

MUSIC IN ENGLISH

One of the leading radio stations has adopted the rule that "all titles to foreign songs, instrumental compositions and operas, shall be given in English translations as far as is reasonable."

It makes an exception of such cases as "Il Trovatore," which is more familiar to ordinary listeners than "The Troubadour" would be. But "The Jewels of the Madonna" will no longer be rendered "Il Gioielli della Madonna," and Brahms' "Cradle Song" will not be called "Wiegenlied."

This is good sense; possibly good patriotism, too, if you look at it that way. Our language is probably as good as any. And few of us know any other.

The "intelligentsia," though, enjoy foreign words and phrases they can recognize in a radio program or anywhere else. And they mustn't be discouraged altogether.

STRENUOUS SIR OLIVER

Sir Oliver Lodge, the famous British scientist who turned from problems of bridges, mines and hydraulics to psychic manifestations and communion between the living and the dead, has now commenced a course of vigorous daily exercise to keep himself fit. He is 80 years old.

He has set up a gymnasium at his home in which he makes daily and strenuous use of gloves, punching bag and expanders which have much the same physical effect as rowing a boat. He also plays golf, carrying his own bag for the exercise that gives him in addition to the game. Here is a good example for younger men.

WHAT CHILDREN NEED

Although much progress has been made in understanding and handling children, circumstances are against them. In some ways progress works against them. It is pointed out by Dr. T. V. Thayer of New York, ethical culturist, that modern children are forced by the development of city life to live in an environment unsuited to their needs. This is true of both rich and poor.

"No matter how widely the tenement house and the luxurious apartment hotel may differ in the comforts of life, they are at one in their regard of the needs of child life," he says. "The tenement drives the child into the street, while the apartment hotel restricts his activities to an environment dominated by adults."

Modern labor-saving devices, admirable as they are, combine with crowded quarters to prevent the home activities which used to give children a "first-hand knowledge of the basic essentials of life."

Fortunate are children who still have spacious homes and yards and old-fashioned chores to do.

"INCOME BY THE YEAR"

During the recent period of unemployment there have come to light several industrial concerns that have solved this problem to the satisfaction of their own workers and executives. Some of them have ended the succession of periods of heavy and light production by estimating the annual consumption of their product and then manufacturing it evenly throughout the year storing the surplus in the off season to be used during the rush.

The president of the Columbia Conserve Co., of Indianapolis, tells how that concern met the situation. In 1923 his company started guar-

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXXVI

THE pompous man threw the stub of the black cigar at the well curb—the old stone curb Eve had weeded and brushed free of earth only the day before. He lighted another, tossing the match into a clump of Sweet William, waved a putty hand, drove away saying he would be back.

Eve ran to the old Judge, trembling. "You wouldn't let him come here? Old pig, throwing his smelly cigars around! You said you'd sell to someone who understands—someone who loves the place."

The man shook his white head, looking helpless and sad. "I'm an old fellow, my dear, and old fellows have a way of sleeping it off. I'd hoped my homestead would pass into the right hands, but after all... So you've got to love it, too? Ah, I thought—you wouldn't want it yourself?"

Half crying, Eve began to protest. She realized suddenly that it was quite as he said; she loved the roomy, ancient farmhouse, the grounds where a hundred flowering things rioted all in gay confusion; the remoteness and tranquillity and old-time charm of it all.

Never, excepting at Lakeview, had she felt so completely herself as she felt here, never so at home. Why, it was home! The Lakeview place would be sold when dear Judge Mat was through with it; the uncle had decided this long ago. Then she would be without an anchor—for who could think of the noisy, untidy cottage in The Lane as this?

Where would she go to do her writing when the pompous man with the black cigars settled down here? Eve remembered her writing and the account in the Haverford bank all in a breath. Eighteen hundred dollars, proceeds of her Rev. relations, and there was as much more to come. And she had been wondering what it would buy her that she wanted most of all!

"Judge Randolph," she cried, "what would you sell the place for? Your very lowest price?"

The pompous man was considering it at four thousand but Eve could have it for less. He would like her to own the old home! Perhaps he might visit there sometimes.

"Of course you might—why, I shouldn't be happy unless you did! If we can manage—"

They managed. Then and there Eve climbed into the rattily old buggy behind the fat old horse and they went jogging into Novel City. There was a great deal of red tape to be unwound at the courthouse, and when this was finished the fat man gave her check for $1,700 and a series of notes for $1,000 and within six months she would be the sole owner of Stony Wall, as the farm was called.

She went back, looked at her newly acquired possessions with love and burning pride. But now that it was all settled, and her name over the thought of losing anything yearly employment. He calls it a system of "incomes by the year." Since then no one employed under the plan has been discharged. The work is seasonal, so there is occasional overtime. But the incomes are based on a year's production and the pay keeps on whether the workman is busy overtime, part time, or not at all.

"It's up to the individual employer," this man says, to work out the system best suited to his concern. "I think," he concludes,

READ THE CLASSIFIED ADS

"we're on our way in this country to a full-time income plan."

This takes care of only one phase of industrial development—the elimination of seasonal unemployment! It does not answer the question whether the employer's responsibility to his workers holds in the event of the appearance of machinery that reduces the numbers of men needed in that particular industry.

the house, as well as her excitement over her first important business transaction was past, she felt a chill touch of fear. What would Ken say? Supposing he would have nothing to do with it—refused point-blank to live here! Ah, the disappointment of that, seeing the fine old place stand idle and deserted, knowing she never could come here, never could call it home!

"I must keep this to myself," she decided finally. "Make a great secret of it. Things must change some time; Ken and I—well, we can't go on forever as we're doing. One way or another things must change."

"I suppose," her thought went on, "I could come here if. Oh, many things happen, and things you'd not want to think about. But a girl could live here by herself if she wished. She could make a living writing and there's Mary and Jimmy so near. And—"

But she was weeping then; stirred to tears by the vision of life without Ken. Because of all that had happened, she decided to allow herself a bit of temperance and knock off work for the remainder of the day. She walked home through an afternoon grown sultry and oppressive. Out over the Sound far beyond the Haverford hills thunderheads piled upon each other and still farther away toward the south lightning flashed in a sky that was like a surging flood. She quickened her steps, hoping that Ken was home.

The cottage was deserted, however, as Eve had left it in the morning. But once inside trees hid her view of mountains and sky and she forgot about the storm, bustling about the preparation of a beautiful dinner for Ken—all of his favorite dishes—having learned that a great deal of very good food was likely to find him into a mellow frame of mind. For now she had decided that she must tell him about Stony Wall; she could not keep her proud secret—Ken must know.

At six o'clock rain began to fall, large splashy drops soaking into the thirsty garden and sending up sweet earthy odors. But for another hour did the twilight of storm descend suddenly, preceded by furious winds, that sent leaves whirling, twisted branches, banged about the house like a thousand imps of mischief turned loose.

Eve hastened to close the windows, fighting down apprehension. If Ken were in the house! But she wouldn't think of this. Ken could take care of himself. He'd have found shelter when he saw the storm coming—oh, she wouldn't be afraid. Of course he wouldn't come now, not through the down-pour; she would wait calmly, very calmly.

But when the lightning began to play in sheets over the whole earth and the thunder rolled away after mighty waves of sound all about she realized that she was not very brave after all.

She kept seeing Ken on the mountains, defenseless before all this fury, and fear sent her dashing out to the gate, looking up, and down the road, though she could see nothing through the deluge; dashing back to the house again to change her sopping clothes and walk the floor, wringing her hands. Such a bad case was—she should have taken better care of him. She had failed as a wife—how she had failed.

The storm passed over toward the north and there was an hour of quiet; then a new tempest came, wilder than the first. In her mounting hysteria it occurred to Eve that Ken might have gone home with Puss if they were together; frantically she ran to the telephone, gave the number she had heard her husband call so many times.

"Yes?" Puss' voice sounded weak and frightened. "Listen—is Ken over there?"

"Ken—oh—" A sob; a click as the receiver was hung up. Again and again Eve tried to get the connection, but always came the operator's answer, dim and far away under the roar of the storm, "They do not answer."

Ken was hurt—he was dying—that was why Puss had been there had been an accident; Ken wanted his wife, needed her—he was dying over there in Spring Garden.

Driven by frenzied imaginings and not at all knowing what she did, Eve threw Ken's slicker around her shoulders, found her old tam-o'-shanter and drew it on her head. She plunged into the rain, catching her breath, making her way against the wind to the garage. The top was up and the curtains on the car—glory be for that. She backed out on the drive, swung into the road, the engine coughing as if with indignation at the battle ahead, and began the drive to Spring Garden.

Not as long as she lived was Eve to forget that drive; times there would be when she would awaken from sleep, sick and trembling with dreams of a solid wall of water moving just ahead of two wavering funnels of light, of wheels turned to jelly in a foaming torrent of road, of a car teetering on the edge of an embankment, turning squarely around in a cross-roads whirlpool.

But tonight she knew no fear for her thought was all of Ken; Ken who needed her, who was waiting for her, calling her name. She was going to him; soon she would see him, put her arms around him. Soon now—very soon.

The car rolled coughing and spluttering into Spring Garden, stopped at the cottage where Puss lived. Chilled and shaking, Eve stumbled up the steps and went in without bothering to knock. Someone was sobbing in a room at the end of a little hall. Eve followed the sound, pushed back a door.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

Correct Eating and Longevity

Dr. Copeland Opposed to "Stay Thin" Fad

Those Who Starve Themselves and Those Who Hurry Through a "Doughnut-Coffee" Lunch Are Headed for a Short Life Instead of a Long One.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NUTRITIONAL failure and how to avoid it, is a subject to which more thought should be given.

The fad of "stay thin" is still with us, but that there is danger in it cannot be denied. The danger to these over-zealous ones lies in the fact that many of them are headed for a short life instead of a long one. Staying thin means an undernourished body.

I know many a man who is too busy making money that he has no time for deliberate eating. People who rush through the day's work, those who snatch a doughnut and coffee for lunch time, not stopping for rest and real food, are not fooling the undertaker a particle.

Since the delicatessen diet has become so popular, many persons are beginning to wonder just how far they can go in being fed from brown paper bags! Let us be sensible about our eating.

It is a long road back to the home-cooked food of our mothers' and grandmothers' time. Those were the days when the house was filled with the appealing odors of long rows of newly baked bread, pies and cakes, twice a week. Home was a real place in those days!

Our forefathers were a sturdy race. They ate more of the homely but nourishing food than we do today. They lived a more leisurely life, and life was not the strenuous pace that it is now. We should take more care of our diet and ways of living today.

There will never be a time when unsatisfactory substitutes can replace real honest foods for the average family. Good health and strength depend upon meat and potatoes, good bread and fresh fruit and some cooked vegetables and milk, and the milk products. You just cannot get along without these foods if you want to be well.

The average American diet often lacks in the necessary vitamins. It is a simple matter to secure an abundance of vitamins if milk or the milk products are eaten.

products, such as cheese, fruits and tomatoes, as well as the leafy green vegetables are taken in large enough amounts. When we speak of the leafy vegetables we mean such vegetables as spinach, lettuce, cauliflower and cabbage.

One of our eminent nutritionists, Dr. H. C. Sherman, has offered the following family budget plan for securing the necessary vitamins: "To spend at least as much for fruit and vegetables as for meat and fish; also to spend at least as much for milk as for meat; and one or two eggs besides bread and butter, fruits and other vegetables."

From infancy to old age, diet is the chief source of energy and growth. On the whole, people are becoming enlightened to the great dangers of nutritional failure. Our girls are being trained in both public and private schools more and more in the art of house-making and cooking. The public has free lectures on the radio, the public press and all manner of periodicals setting forth the value of proper diet and how to secure it.

There is another thing to think of and that is the importance of regularity in the meals. Have a set time for your meals. Have your menus regularly and systematically good. Take enough time so that you can eat leisurely. Make a pleasant meal of the meat. Thus you may live long and happily.

BUSINESS INDIVIDUALISM

Apparently industry isn't all going to consolidate, any more than trade is, in spite of the recent trend that way. James Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, declared the other day as far as mergers are concerned, "the bloom is off the rose."

"To merge or not to merge, that is the question," he mused. "Some think unless we merge, we will be submerged. The best thing we can do is to emerge." Meaning, perhaps, to emerge from the notion that a merger is the remedy for all industrial ills, the answer to every economic problem.

"Today every thing runs big," he said. "But let me tell you, we must give some attention to the small manufacturer."

Mr. Farrell is not the only big business man who is inclined to think that big business will find it advisable to let little business live, and even to do some decentralizing itself.

"The next ten years," suggests another observer, "may belong to the business man who grew up in his market, to the manufacturer who serves a special demand well, and to the workman who has been on the job so long that he needs no high-priced overhead to tell him what to do."

MUSIC IN ENGLISH

One of the leading radio stations has adopted the rule that "all titles to foreign songs, instrumental compositions and operas shall be given in English translations as far as is reasonable."

It makes an exception of such cases as "Il Trovatore," which is more familiar to ordinary listeners than "The Troubadour" would be. But "The Jewels of the Madonna" will no longer be rendered "I Gioielli della Madonna," and Brahms' "Cradle Song" will not be called "Wiegenlied."

This is good sense; possibly good patriotism, too, if you look at it that way. Our language is probably as good as any. And few of us know any other.

The "intelligentsia," though, enjoy foreign words and phrases they can recognize, in a radio program or anywhere else. And they mustn't be discouraged altogether.

STRENUOUS SIR OLIVER

Sir Oliver Lodge, the famous British scientist who turned from problems of bridges, mines and hydraulics to psychic manifestations and communion between the living and the dead, has now commenced a course of vigorous daily exercise to keep himself fit. He is 80 years old.

He has set up a gymnasium at his home in which he makes daily and strenuous use of gloves, punching bag and expanders which have much the same physical effect as rowing a boat. He also plays golf, carrying his own bag for the exercise that gives him in addition to the game. Here is a good example for younger men.

WHAT CHILDREN NEED

Although much progress has been made in understanding and handling children, circumstances are against them. In some ways progress works against them. It is pointed out by Dr. T. V. Thayer of New York, ethical culturist, that modern children are forced by the development of city life to live in an environment unsuited to their needs. This is true of both rich and poor.

"No matter how widely the tenement house and the luxurious apartment hotel may differ in the comforts of life, they are at one in their regard of the needs of child life," he says. "The tenement drives the child into the street, while the apartment hotel restricts his activities to an environment dominated by adults."

Modern labor-saving devices, admirable as they are, combine with crowded quarters to prevent the home activities which used to give children a "first-hand knowledge of the basic essentials of life."

Fortunate are children who still have spacious homes and yards and old-fashioned chores to do.

"INCOME BY THE YEAR"

During the recent period of unemployment there have come to light several industrial concerns that have solved this problem to the satisfaction of their own workers and executives. Some of them have ended the succession of periods of heavy and light production by estimating the annual consumption of their product and then manufacturing it evenly throughout the year storing the surplus in the off season to be used during the rush.

The president of the Columbia Conserve Co., of Indianapolis tells how that concern met the situation. In 1923 his company started guar-

THE LADDER TO FAME ?

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXXVI.

THE pompous man threw the stub of the black cigar at the well curbed—the old stone curb Eve had weeded and brushed free of earth only the day before. He lighted another, tossing the match into a clump of Sweet William, waved a pudgy hand, drove away saying he would be back.

Eve ran to the old Judge, trembling. "You wouldn't let him come here? Old pig, throwing his smelly cigars around! You said you'd sell to someone who understands—someone who loves the place!"

The man shook his white head, looking helpless and sad. "I'm an old fellow, my dear, and old fellows have a way of stepping out. I'd hoped—"

"So you've got to love it, too? Ah, I thought—you wouldn't want it yourself?"

Half crying, Eve began to protest. She realized suddenly that it was quite as he said; she loved the roomy, ancient farmhouse, the grounds where a hundred flowerings things roiled all in gay confusion; the remoteness and tranquility and old-time charm of it all. Never, except at Lakeview, had she felt so completely herself as she felt here, never so at home. Why, it was home! The Lakeview place would be sold when dear Uncle Mat was through with it; the uncle had decided this long ago. Then she would be without an anchor—for who could think of the noisy, untidy cottage in The Lane as this?

Where would she go to do her writing when the pompous man with the black cigars settled down here?

Eve remembered her writing and the account in the Haverford bank all in a breath. Eighteen hundred dollars, proceeds of her Revolution, and there was as much more to come. And she had been wondering what it would buy her that she wanted most of all! "Judge Randolph," she cried, "what would you sell the place for? Your very lowest price!"

The pompous man was considering it at four thousand but Eve could have it for less. He would like her to own the old home! Perhaps he might visit there sometimes.

"Of course you might—why, I shouldn't be happy unless you did! If we can manage—"

They managed. Then and there Eve climbed into the rattly old buggy behind the fat old horse and they went joggling into Novel City. There was a great deal of red tape to be unwound at the courthouse, and when this was finished Eve had given her check for $1,800 and a series of notes for $1,700, and within six months she would be the sole owner of Stony Wall, as the farm was called.

She went back, looked at her newly acquired possessions with love and bursting pride. But now that it was all settled, and her name over the thought of losing anteering yearly employment. He calls it a system of "incomes by the year." Since then no one employed under the plan has been discharged. The work is seasonal, so there is occasional overtime. But the incomes are based on a year's production and the pay keeps on whether the workman is busy overtime, part time, or not at all.

"It's up to the individual employer," this man says, to work out the system best suited to his concern. "I think," he concludes, the house, as well as her excitement over her first important business transaction was past, she felt a chill touch of fear. What would Ken say? Supposing he would have nothing to do with it—refused point-blank to live here! Ah, the disappointment of that, seeing the fine old place stand idle and deserted, knowing she never could come here, never could call it home!

"I must keep this to myself," she decided finally. "Make a great secret of it. Things must change some time; Ken and I well, we can't go on forever as we're doing. One way or another things must change."

"I suppose," her thought went on, "I could come here if. . . Oh, many things happen, and things you'd not want to think about. But a girl could live here by herself if she wished. She could make a living writing and there's Mary and Jimmy so near. And—"

But she was weeping then; stirred to tears by the vision of life without Ken.

Because of all that had happened, she decided to allow herself a bit of temperance and knock off work for the remainder of the day. She walked home through an afternoon grown sultry and oppressive. Out over the Sound far beyond the Haverford hills thunderheads piled upon each other and still farther away toward the south lightning flashed in a sky that was like a surging flood. She quickened her steps, hoping that Ken was home.

The cottage was deserted, however, as Eve had left it in the morning. But once inside trees hid her view of mountains and sky and she forgot about the storm, bustling about the preparation of a beautiful dinner for Ken—all of his favorite dishes—having learned that a great deal of very good food was likely to put him into a mellow frame of mind. For now she had decided that she must tell him about Stony Wall; she could not keep her proud secret—Ken must know.

At six o'clock rain began to fall, large splashy drops soaking into the sweet, earthy odors. But not for another hour did the twilight of storm descend suddenly, preceded by furious winds, that sent leaves whirling, twisted branches, banged about the house like a thousand imps of mischief turned loose.

Eve hastened to close the windows, fighting down apprehension. If Ken were in the hills! But she wouldn't think of this; Ken could take care of himself. He'd have found shelter when he saw the storm coming—oh, she wouldn't be afraid—she wouldn't let herself be afraid. Of course he wouldn't come now, not through the downpour, she would wait calmly, very calmly.

But when the lightning began to play in sheets over the whole earth and the thunder rolled wave after mighty wave of sound all about she realized that she was not very brave after all. She kept seeing Ken on the mountains, defenseless before all this fury, and fear sent her dashing out to the gate, looking up and down the road, though she could see nothing through the deluge; dashing back to the house again to change her sopping clothes and walk the floor, wringing her hands. Such a kid as he was—she should have taken better care of him. She had failed as a wife—how she had failed.

"we're on our way in this country to a full-time income plan. This takes care of only one phase of industrial development—the elimination of seasonal unemployment." It does not answer the question whether the employer's responsibility to his workers holds in the event of the appearance of machinery that reduces the numbers of men needed in that particular industry.

The storm passed over toward the north and there was an hour of quiet; then a new tempest came, mounting hysteria. It occurred to Eve that Ken might have gone home with Puss if they were together; frantically she ran to the telephone, gave the number she had heard her husband call so many times.

"Yes?" Puss' voice sounded weak and frightened.

"Listen—Ken over here?" "Ken—oh—" A sob; a click as the receiver was hung up. Again and again Eve tried to get the connection, but always came the operator's answer, dim and far away under the roar of the storm, "They do not answer."

Ken was hurt—he was dying—that was why Puss had cried. There had been an accident; Ken wanted his wife; needed her—she was dying over there at Spring Garden.

Driven by frenzied imaginings and not at all knowing what she did, Eve threw Ken's slicker around her shoulders, found her old tam-o'-shanter and drew it on her head. She plunged into the rain, catching her breath, making her way against the wind to the garage.

The top was up on the drive, swung into the road, the engine coughing as if with indignation at the battle ahead, and began the drive to Spring Garden.

Not as long as she lived was Eve to forget that drive; times there would be when she would awaken from sleep, sick and trembling with dreams of a solid wall of water moving just ahead of two wavering funnels of light, of wheels turned to jelly in a foaming torrent of road, of a car teetering on the edge of an embankment, turning squally around in a crossroads whirlpool.

But tonight she knew no fear for her thought was all of Ken; Ken who needed her, who was waiting for her, calling her name. She was going to him; soon she would see him, put her arms around him. Soon now—very soon—

The car rolled coughing and sputtering into Spring Garden, stopped at the cottage where Puss lived. Chilled and shaking, Eve stumbled up the steps and went in without bothering to knock. Someone was sobbing in a room at the end of a little hall. Eve followed the sound, pushed back a door.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

Correct Eating and Longevity

Dr. Copeland Opposed to "Stay Thin" Fad

Those Who Starve Themselves and Those Who Hurry Through a "Doughnut-Coffee" Lunch Are Headed for a Short Life Instead of a Long One.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NUTRITIONAL failure and how to avoid it, is a subject to which more thought should be given.

The fad of "stay thin" is still with us, but that there is danger in it cannot be denied. The danger to these over-zealous ones lies in the fact that many of them are headed for a short life instead of a long one. Staying thin means an undernourished body.

I know many a man who is so busy making money that he has no time for deliberate eating. People who rush through the day's work, those who snatch a doughnut and coffee for lunch time, not stopping for rest and real food, are not fooling the undertaker a particle.

Since the delicatessen diet has become so popular, many persons are beginning to wonder just how far we can go in being fed from brown paper bags! Let us be sensible about our eating.

It is a long road back to the home-cooked food of our mothers' and grandmothers' time. Those were the days when the house was filled with the appealing odors of long rows of newly baked bread, pies and cakes, twice a week. Home was a real place in those days!

Our forefathers were a sturdy race. They ate more of the homely but nourishing foods than we do today. They lived a more leisurely life. Life was not the strenuous pace that it is now. We should take more care of our diet and ways of living today.

There will never be a time when unsatisfactory substitutes can replace real honest foods for the average family. Good health and strength depend upon meat and potatoes, good bread and butter, fresh and whole-breaded vegetables and fruits and the milk products. You just cannot get along without these foods if you want to be well.

The average American diet often lacks in the necessary vitamins. It is a simple matter to secure an abundance of vitamins if milk or the milk products, such as cheese, fruits and tomatoes, as well as the leafy green vegetables, are taken in large enough amounts. When we speak of the leafy vegetables we mean such vegetables as spinach, lettuce, cauliflower and cabbage.

One of our eminent nutritionists, Dr. H. C. Sherman, has offered the following family budget plan for securing the necessary vitamins: "To spend at least as much for fruit and vegetables as for meat and fish; also to spend at least as much for milk as for meat or for milk and cheese at for meat and fish." This is a very good rule to follow.

You cannot enjoy robust health if there is a nutritional lack. Each day the diet should contain at least a pint of milk for adults and a quart for the growing child, two salads and two liberal helpings of the leafy portion of green vegetables, one small helping of meat, and one or two eggs besides bread and butter, fruits and other vegetables.

From infancy to old age, diet is the chief source of energy and growth. On the whole, people are becoming enlightened to the great dangers of nutritional failure. Our girls are being trained in both public and private schools more and more in the art of home-making and cooking. The public has free lectures, the radio, the public press and all manner of periodicals setting forth the value of proper diet and how to secure it.

There is another thing to think of and that is the importance of regularity in the meals. Have a set time for your meals. Have your menus regularly and systematically good. Take enough time so that you can eat leisurely. Make a pleasant ceremony of the meal. Thus you may live long and happily.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Fannie Brice, star of the United Artists all-talking, all-singing picture, "Be Yourself," directed by Thornton Freeland, now showing at the Cliftona theatre, discovered during the production of the picture that she was being paid good money for doing something that she formerly had to pay to have done.

"This is the life for me," commented Miss Brice. "The first thing that impressed me about motion pictures was the fact that the producers pay you for having your pictures taken."

"In all my years of vaudeville, I've had to pay neat sums for the privilege of sitting for a photographer. Now they pay me good money for the pleasure."

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Is a poor young man honorable or cowardly when he refuses to marry the girl he loves, and who loves him, because of her father's wealth?

The pertinent question motivates much drama and some comedy in the course of "Rich People," a Pathe dialogue feature starring Constance Bennett which opened under favorable auspices at the Metropolitan Theatre yesterday. "Rich People" is a distinct departure from the average story of the social upper crust. Its characters are likable. The picture was skillfully directed by Edward H. Griffith, whose sympathetic touch vested the most intimate scenes with delicacy and good taste.

"Rich People" boasts as its star Constance Bennett, who returns to the screen in this picture after a retirement of more than three years. She is more charming and beautiful than ever.

John Boles appears opposite Bebe in "Rio Rita" and his tenor adds much to the glamor of the score. Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey play the comedy roles they created in the original stage production. Dorothy Lee, whose piquant "baby talk" singing was responsible for a large measure

ANNUAL BUCKEYE TRACK MEET AT ATHENS, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Scores of Leading Athletes Throughout State Colleges Will Be Entered In Contests—Miami University Looms As Strongest Team.

ATHENS, May 19—Scores of the leading athletes of the Buckeye Intercollegiate Athletic Conference will assemble in Athens next Friday and Saturday to participate in the annual Buckeye track and field meet which will be held in Ohio University's new stadium.

The meet promises to be the most closely contested in recent years. Miami University is probably the strongest, entered in the annual carnival, but Ohio Wesleyan, University of Cincinnati, Dennison and Ohio University are considered on a par with each other.

On the outcome of the annual Buckeye track classic rests, to no little extent, the year's Buckeye Conference trophy, which is awarded at the close of each year. The trophy is now in possession of Ohio Wesleyan. This year, Cincinnati, Miami, Ohio Wesleyan, and Ohio University are all fighting for its possession, with only Dennison definitely out of the running.

Sports writers around the Buckeye circle are expecting many record-breaking performances this spring if weather conditions are favorable. The new track at Ohio Stadium is in excellent condition, despite the rainless weather during April and May.

The century dash will probably go to Dee Hutson, Dennison flash, who finished second to George Simpson, Ohio State sprint star in the Penn relays. He will have a hard race, however, from Norman Lambacher, Ohio Wesleyan ace, who will be defending his championship won last year at the B I A. C. meet. James Gordon, Miami is expected to add competition in the 100 yard dash, while Ohio University and Cincinnati will probably do well to finish in the low places.

James Gordon, Miami flash, is unquestionably the king of the 440 yard dash. Last year at the Delaware gathering, Gordon set a new Buckeye record for the dash, doing it in 49.7 seconds. Ferald Rutche, a team mate, has pushed Gordon in every meet this year and will probably take second or third for the Indians.

Another feature of the gathering will be the distance runs. Albert Morgan, Ohio University's champion, holds the hopes of the Bobcats for a good score at the end of the meet. Morgan has been defeated but once this year, that coming in an indoor meet at Ohio Wesleyan when he was disqualified.

Morgan has also been doing the two mile in great style and may furnish Charles Schugert, Miami sophomore, with plenty of opposition.

Pole vaulters in the Buckeye are plentiful this year. Dave Davis and Gerald Chadwick, both Miami men, have been doing over 12 feet this year which will beat the Buckeye eye record. Sheldon Rowland, Ohio, has also been topping the bar at better than an even dozen feet.

The high jump will bring together Dave Davis, Miami champion, and James Opfer, Ohio Wesleyan, two of the best high jumpers in the Buckeye. The record of 6 feet 5-8 inches has been bettered by both men this spring and will probably fall under competition.

Broad jump will probably go to Miami. The Big Red has three men, John Steinhauer, Dave Davis, and John Stark, all of whom can do better than 22 feet. They finished one-two-three in a recent meet with Oberlin College.

There is little question that Miami will enter the annual carnival a top-heavy favorite to repeat its championship of last year. Not once this year has Coach George Rider's team been held below 92 points in a meet, and it has captured at least 13 out of 15 first places in each match.

Chances of Ohio and Ohio Wesleyan, who will probably fight for second place, will rest in ability to place second and third men. Dennison will probably end in close fourth with Cincinnati trailing.

The meet will be the first ever held in Athens. The new stadium at Ohio University brought the carnival here.

NINTH FRAME LOSES GAME

Ashville Entrant Permits Westwood To Score Three Markers In Last Inning.

Failing to protect a lead of 7-5 going into the ninth inning, Ashville's entrant in the Suburban baseball league dropped a hard fought contest to Westwood A. C. Sunday at Ashville when the invaders chased three runs over the rubber in the first of the final frame. The score was 8-7.

Ashville started like world beaters and in the first three innings pounded out enough hits to score five runs. Westwood was not inactive at this time and scored four runs. Westwood tied the count in the fourth frame but Ashville scored in the sixth and seventh to place the score at 7-5. Then came the final inning when Westwood scored three runs and held Ashville scoreless in the last of the ninth.

Shutt was the starting Ashville hurler while Pettibone finished and was given credit for the defeat.

Davis, Ashville's catcher, smacked a home run and Art Beatty, middle-gardner, chalked up a triple although he didn't enter the run column.

GALLANT FOX TO BE TESTED

Must Face Which One and Boojum In Belmont Stakes In a Few Weeks.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, May 19—There is only one horse race that can determine what the Kentucky Derby on Saturday and previously the Preakness so signally failed to disclose, namely whether Gallant Fox is a great three-year-old merely the best of an indifferent brood. The show down in question didn't arrive at any time during the running of either classic. It will come in the Belmont stakes, several weeks hence, when Which One and perhaps Boojum, the Whitney stars, will ask the Fox to run the race of a true champ or admit that the mantle of greatness is not rightfully his.

He may not necessarily have been a great colt on Saturday but he certainly was no worse than a good one. Only a real horse can win the Kentucky Derby as easily as the Fox did and so today the only pressing question concerns itself with the quality of his goodness.

Horses ran against him in the Preakness and Derby cannot hope to furnish the answer. This must come from a colt which has done enough winning in his own right to afford the inevitable basis of comparison by which the gauge of greatness is established.

If Gallant Fox beats Which One in the Belmont, then automatically he must be awarded a place on the pedestal of ranking champions before which the gods of racing bow and in the three three innings bend the knee.

Lancaster To Have Lighted Athletic Field

The first athletic meet to be held on an illuminated field played at night will be put into action in Lancaster, Ohio at North Athletic Field, Ohio at North Athletic Field. This will be a track meet of the Central Ohio League composed of Cambridge, Coshocton, Mt. Vernon, Newark and Lancaster, Ohio. This and subsequent athletic events will be played under a flood illumination from 60,000 watts of light. Pole vaulters in the Buckeye are plentiful this year. Dave Davis and Gerald Chadie, both Miami men, have been doing over 12 feet this year which will beat the Buckeye record. Sheldon Rowland, Ohio, has also been topping the bar at better than an even dozen feet.

The high jump will bring together Dave Davis, Miami champion, and James Opfer, Ohio Wesleyan, two of the best high jumpers in the Buckeye. The record of 6 feet 5-8 inches has been bettered by both men this spring and will probably fall under competition.

Broad jump will probably go to Miami. The Big Red has three men, John Steinhauer, Dave Davis, and John Stark, all of whom can do better than 22 feet. They finished one-two-three in a recent meet with Oberlin College.

There is little question that Miami will enter the annual carnival a top-heavy favorite to repeat its championship of last year. Not once this year has Coach George Rider's team been held below 92 points in a meet, and it has captured at least 13 out of 15 first places in each match.

Chances of Ohio and Ohio Wesleyan, who will probably fight for second place, will rest in ability to place second and third men. Dennison will probably end in close fourth with Cincinnati trailing.

The meet will be the first ever held in Athens. The new stadium at Ohio University brought the carnival here.

NINTH FRAME LOSES GAME

Ashville Entrant Permits Westwood To Score Three Markers in Last Inning.

Failing to protect a lead of 7-5 going into the ninth inning, Ashville's entrant in the Suburban baseball league dropped a hard fought contest to Westwood A. C. Sunday at Ashville when the invaders chased three runs over the rubber in the first of the final frame. The score was 8-7.

Ashville started like world beaters and in the first three innings pounded out enough hits to score five runs. Westwood was not inactive at this time and scored four runs. Westwood tied the count in the fourth frame but Ashville placed in the sixth and seventh to place the score at 7-5. Then came the final inning when Westwood scored three runs and held Ashville scoreless in the last of the ninth.

Shutt was the starting Ashville hurler while Pettibone finished and was given credit for the defeat. Westwood used two hurlers, Morris and Hunter.

Davis, Ashville's catcher, smacked a home run and Art Beatty, middle-gardner, chalked up a triple although he didn't enter the run column.

NIMRODS KILL FISH WITH BOATS OARS

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.—Two local nimrods—George Haddock and Curt Carter—tell the best fish story of the year.

Haddock and Carter used gill nets. While operating near Spring Creek they saw a big tarpon leap out of the water a few yards away and land on an oyster bar! They then punnieled the silver king with their oars until they could handle it with their hands and land it in their boat.

To prove their capture of the huge fish, which weighed 85 pounds they brought it to town and put it on display.

GALLANT FOX TO BE TESTED

Must Face Which One and Boojum In Belmont Stakes In a Few Weeks.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, May 18.—There is only one horse race that can determine what the Kentucky Derby on Saturday and previously the Preakness so signally failed to disclose, namely, whether Gallant Fox is a great three-year-old merely the best of an indifferent brood? The show down in question didn't arrive at any time during the running of either classic. It will come in the Belmont stakes, several weeks hence, when Which One and perhaps Boojum, the Whitney stars, will ask the Fox to run the race of a true champ or admit that the mantle of greatness is not rightfully his.

He may not necessarily have been a great colt on Saturday but he certainly was no worse than a good one. Only a real horse can win the Kentucky Derby as easily as the Fox did and so today the only pressing question concerns itself with the quality of his goodness.

Horses ran against him in the Preakness and Derby cannot hope to furnish the answer. This must come from a colt which has done enough winning in his own right to afford the inevitable basis of comparison by which the gauge of greatness is established.

If Gallant Fox beats Which One in the Belmont, then automatically he must be awarded a place on the pedestal of ranking champions before which the gods of racing bow and in the first three innings bend the knee.

Lancaster To Have Lighted Athletic Field

The first athletic meet to be held on an illuminated field played at night will be put into action in Lancaster, Ohio at North Athletic Field, Ohio at North Athletic Field. This will be a track meet of the Central Ohio League composed of Cambridge, Coshocton, Mt. Vernon, Newark and Lancaster, Ohio. This and subsequent athletic events will be played under a flood illumination from 60,000 watts of light. This complete lighting installation was purchased from the Cahill Brothers, who specialize in illumination equipment for athletic fields.

The wide spread popularity which athletics is receiving forecasts a tremendous attendance at these events and Lancaster is happy to extend a cordial invitation to the people in our neighboring cities to attend these interesting affairs.

An American community doesn't consider itself a real city unless it has skyscrapers and subways, whether it needs 'em or not.

HENPECKED HUBBY SEEKS PARK PEACE

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—A park bench, long known as a haven for idlers and drifting humanity, recently became a sanctuary for a henpecked husband.

This was revealed when Louis Jung, census-taker assigned to visit the city parks to enumerate the "bums," found a man asleep on a bench. The man, on being awakened, protested vehemently.

"Say, I'm no bum or vagrant; I've got a home,"

"Well, what are you doing here?" queried Jung.

"I had a fight with the wife and not being able to find peace at home I stepped over here. It seems though that a man like me can find neither rest nor peace anywhere."

LISTEN.—YOU WATCH HIM—BEFORE HE SHUFFLES HE MAKES A PACK OF THE DISCARDS THEN HE TAKES THE HANDS THAT WERE OUT AND SCATTERS "TRIPS," "PAIRS," ETC. SEPARATELY THROUGH THE PACK. IN THAT WAY HE COULD PLACE CARDS TO SUIT HIMSELF AND SHUFFLE SO AS NOT TO DISARRANGE THEM—AND I CLAIM THAT'S WHY HE HOLDS ACES SO OFTEN.

POOR ARGUMENT! HE GETS ACES ON EVERYBODY ELSE'S DEAL. HOW DO YOU ACCOUNT FOR THAT?

WHY, IT'S PROPER TO SCATTER TRIPS OR A FLUSH THROUGH THE PACK BEFORE SHUFFLING IT'S WRONG TO BUNCH 'EM.

AWAIT "ZERO HOUR" AT PEN

All Troops To Be Removed— "Grapevine" Telegraph Reports Plans For Revolt.

COLUMBUS, O., May 19.—With only 100 of the khaki-clad Ohio National guardsmen on duty, Ohio State Penitentiary officials today anxiously awaited the "zero hour" when all of the soldiers will be withdrawn. It was the smallest number of guardsmen on duty since April 21 when fire wiped out the lives of 320 convicts.

Rumored plots to burn up the entire prison have reached the ears of penitentiary officials through "tip-off" convicts or "snitches" on the inside of the walls.

An investigation to determine whether the fire which was discovered under the steps of the Catholic chapel last night, was of incendiary origin, was started today.

Major M. J. Meyers, executive officer of the guardsmen on duty within the walls, declared that a disturbance occurred in the negro dormitory when news of the small fire spread. He said today that he fired shot into the air to quiet the prisoners. Penitentiary officials anxiously awaited the withdrawal of all of the guardsmen to determine whether there will be any concentrated effort at a prison revolt, as has been reported through the "grapevine" telegraph.

AWAIT "ZERO HOUR" AT PEN

All Troops To Be Removed—"Grapevine" Telegraph Reports Plans For Revolt.

COLUMBUS, O., May 19.—With only 100 of the khaki-clad Ohio National guardsmen on duty, Ohio State Penitentiary officials today anxiously and somewhat uneasily awaited the "zero hour," when all of the soldiers will be withdrawn. It was the smallest number of guardsmen on duty since April 21 when fire wiped out the lives of 320 convicts.

Rumored plots to burn up the entire prison have reached the ears of penitentiary officials through "tip-off" convicts or "snitches" on the inside of the walls.

An investigation to determine whether the fire which was discovered under the steps of the Catholic chapel last night, was of incendiary origin, was started today.

Major M. J. Meyers, executive officer of the guardsmen on duty within the walls, declared that a disturbance occurred in the negro dormitory when news of the small fire spread. He said today that he fired a shot into the air to quiet the prisoners.

Penitentiary officials anxiously awaited the withdrawal of all of the guardsmen to determine whether there will be any concentrated effort at a prison revolt, as has been reported through the "grapevine" telegraph.
